

Within the framework of the Jean Monnet Module 101176925- SOLUTION-ERASMUS-JMO-2024-HEI-TCH-RSCH “Gender Issue in Migration: European Approach” project, a new module “European Approach to Addressing Gender Issues in Migration” has been presented to students of the Economics, World Economy, and International Relations programs. The course was introduced by the Jean Monnet Module grant holders: S.T. Abeuova (project leader), G.M. Baigozhina, and K.A. Nevmatulina.

This course is dedicated to a topical and complex issue — gender aspects of migration within the European Union. It aims to examine how European countries approach the gender dimension of migration, analyze the policies and programs they implement, and explore the challenges and opportunities present in this field. We will analyze EU legislation, best practices of European countries, and the role of international organizations and civil society in protecting the rights of migrants and ensuring gender equality.
